Survey 3:

An important area for researchers is to understand how individuals experience different everyday events, particularly during the COVID-19 pandemic. This topic can be sensitive and may bring up tough feelings, and we advise individuals who feel like they are having very high levels of stress or emotional distress to consider not participating in this survey. The results of this survey are private and will be kept strictly confidential. This means that responses to this survey shared anywhere outside of the research team are anonymous and not linked to you. You may skip any questions you do not feel comfortable answering.
